Cloud Sizing in action

When it was time for a multinational retailer to chart their three-to-five year IT investment roadmap, they wanted clarity on the options for repurposing unused licenses in the cloud and certainty around the cost of their migration.

The Oracle SIA team worked with the customer to understand which migration programs were available for their current licensing investments. This approach has lowered the customer's overall license support costs and empowered them to make licensing decisions with more confidence and clarity, ultimately helping optimize their Oracle investment to deliver improved financial and technological results.
