Presentation

Nishio: Good afternoon, everyone. I am Yuki Nishio from Investor Relations of Oracle Corporation Japan. Now We will begin Oracle Corporation Japan's financial results briefing for the full fiscal year ended May 2026. Please refer to the notes in the financial results release and supplementary financial materials for the disclaimer. Today, S. Krishna Kumar, Corporate Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, will provide an overview of our financial results for the period. This will be followed by a Q&A session, during which we will take your questions in writing via Zoom's Q&A function. Now, S. Krishna Kumar will present the overview of our financial results. I'd like to turn this call over to KK, Senior Vice President, JPAC and Japan CFO.

S. Krishna Kumar: Thank you, Nishio-san. Good afternoon, everyone, and welcome to Oracle Japan's earnings conference call. FY2026 was a strong year for Oracle Japan. We delivered solid growth, strengthened our market position and continue to expand our business across both cloud and mission-critical workloads.

Our cloud business, particularly Oracle Cloud Infrastructure, remained a key growth driver throughout the year. We also made significant progress in expanding our cloud presence in Japan. We are pleased that five strategic partners have now committed to Oracle Alloy, helping establish an important foundation for sovereign cloud services in Japan. These initiatives are enabling customers to address growing requirements around data sovereignty, security, regulatory compliance and operational control while the underlying cloud and data center infrastructures continue to expand.

At the same time, our existing businesses remain stable and resilient. Many customers continue to rely on Oracle to run their most critical systems, and we continue to see steady demand from organizations that prioritize reliability, performance and long-term operational stability. This combination of growth and stability remains one of the key strengths of our business.

Looking ahead, we believe we are entering the next phase of growth. AI is rapidly becoming a strategic priority for many organizations. However, the opportunity for Oracle is not AI itself. As customers prepare their businesses for AI, they are investing in infrastructure, data platforms, applications, and deployment models to support AI securely and at scale. We believe this will create new opportunities across Oracle Cloud infrastructure database services, cloud applications, and sovereign cloud initiatives. With growing cloud business, a stable installed base and expanding sovereign cloud capabilities, Oracle Japan is well positioned to benefit from these investments in the years ahead.

Now let me give a few customer examples to establish what I have said so far.

Customer number one, SoftBank. Oracle and SoftBank have further strengthened the partnership with SoftBank adopting Oracle Alloy and will launch generative AI services powered by the Japanese LLM Sarashina on its Cloud PF Type A platform starting in June 2026. Oracle Alloy operated in SoftBank's Japan-based data centers, Cloud PF Type A provides a sovereign cloud environment with access to more than 200 OCI, AI and cloud services. By combining Sarashina with Cloud PF Type A, organizations can securely leverage proprietary data for generative AI applications, including document automation, coding assistance, AI agents and multi-agent systems, helping improve productivity and accelerate innovation.

Number two, DENSO, this is an interesting one. DENSO is modernizing its global supply chain operations on a scalable, integrated platform to improve efficiency, decision-making and risk management while advancing innovation and sustainability initiatives. Building on its existing investments in Oracle Fusion Cloud ERP and Oracle Fusion Cloud HCM, DENSO will implement Oracle Fusion Cloud supply chain and manufacturing across planning, procurement, manufacturing and delivery operations. The solution will enhance supply chain visibility, reduce costs and risks, and accelerate decision-making. As part of its broader transformation strategy, DENSO will also establish an AI Center of Excellence to promote AI adoption, share best practices across Fusion applications, and align leadership throughout the program.

Number three, Dai Nippon Printing. DNP offers an on-premise AI solution for organizations with strict security requirements, helping unlock knowledge embedded in documents and operational data. Using Oracle Autonomous AI Database, DNP transforms unstructured content such as manuals, quality records, and reports into AI-ready data while integrating it with real-time business data across inventory, procurement, assets and quality management. By combining Vector Search and SQL Search, the platform enables organizations to seamlessly access and leverage both unstructured and structured data, improving knowledge utilization and operational efficiency, just to give you a sense of the broad outreach in the market that we have with our different products and services and to underline Oracle's presence in the most mission-critical systems, applications and industries.

Question & Answer

Nishio: We will now take your questions. Please note that this briefing is intended for securities market participants. We kindly ask members of the press to refrain from asking questions. Please use the Q&A function in Zoom to enter your company name, your name, and up to three questions. Please note that questions without a company name will be skipped. I will read each question aloud, and CFO KK will respond. Duplicate questions may be omitted. We will now begin the Q&A session.

The first question is from Tanaka-san from BofA Securities.

Tanaka [Q]: Can you explain why the HR cost went up by JPY3 billion in Q4, three months? That's the first question.

S. Krishna Kumar [A]: As a company, we have been looking at our people structure and the impact of AI and overall efficiencies in the organization, as a result of which we had some restructuring, so some of those costs are reflected in the higher expense that you see for human resources in Q4.

Tanaka [Q]: The second question. When we look at the category of others, the expenses went up by JPY1 billion. Can you explain the breakdown of this JPY1 billion, and is this situation going to continue on in the subsequent quarters?

S. Krishna Kumar [A]: There are multiple expenses that constitute this. One of them was a large event that was conducted around the same time frame, so advertising expenses went up. Some telecom expenses went up as well. The marketing event is an annual, so we will see slightly higher expenses whenever we conduct that annual event. The others are business-as-usual expenses.

Nishio: The next question is from Kikuchi-san of SMBC Nikko. The first question is about the labor cost. That was already answered, so we're going to skip that first question.

Kikuchi [Q]: The second question is about dividend. A special dividend will be paid out at the end of May of 2026, but this special dividend was also done two terms ago, in FY2024. In a short period of time, a significant amount of special dividends are being paid out, but is this appropriate for the Company?

S. Krishna Kumar [A]: We carefully consider our dividend policy every year with the Board and decide on what is most appropriate. We were sitting on a large pool of cash, we considered all possibilities, and we wanted to make sure that we enhance shareholder value, as a result of which there is a consensus on the Board which is still not approved. It is still a forecast, so I still need the final Board approval. At this point, it is a forecast, but there is consensus that we would like to reward our shareholders with this dividend.

Nishio: The next question is from Henderson from JPMorgan.

Henderson [Q]: The total amount of the dividend is higher than the cash position in Q4. From a cash flow perspective, can you give us your take on that?

S. Krishna Kumar [A]: We are pretty confident, so we will be generating cash in the next couple of months as well, so we should be able to take care of this payout. We haven't yet finalized the source, but we have lots of options available, including premature retirement of some of the loans that we have with the corporation, so I don't see any challenge in the distribution.

Henderson [Q]: The second question, if you are confident in your cash flow, a normal dividend payout of 100% might be appropriate. Do you have any thoughts on that?

S. Krishna Kumar [A]: This is a board sort of discipline. I don't know what is appropriate. We generally try to maintain a normal dividend of 40%, which has been our consistent policy for several years. As and when we think there is enough cash, surplus cash, we try to reward the shareholders. That's how we look at it, and that's how we probably will continue to look at it in the future as well.

Nishio: The next question is from Watanabe-san of Mitsui Sumitomo Asset Management.

Watanabe [Q]: If we look at the segment operating profits, the adjustment portion is quite significant. If the labor cost point that you talked about earlier includes some kind of one-time payout of any bonuses, is this something that will be continuing on into the future?

S. Krishna Kumar [A]: As I said earlier, we had a restructuring cost in Q4, so most of what we see in the adjustment column pertains to the restructuring costs. As a company, we will continue to look at getting operational efficiencies. We will continue to invest in the right people for our future businesses. I won't say that restructuring efforts will continue, but definitely we will continue to look at becoming more efficient as an organization. That's how the management thinks and that is what is best for the shareholders as well.

Nishio: The next question is from Ueno-san of Daiwa Securities, but this is again about the labor cost, so we will skip this one. Are there any more questions?

No more questions.
