

5 Tenets of Modern Marketing

Analysis

More than ever, marketers are being held accountable for demonstrating how marketing investments directly translate into sales. That's why Modern Marketing is fueled by intelligent data analysis and reporting. Implementing the proper analysis systems can help you make critical decisions regarding which parts of your marketing efforts are working or not, and provide the reporting tools necessary to justify those decisions by connecting them directly with pipeline and revenue.

By implementing systems for reporting and intelligence, you can better understand the impact that sales and marketing efforts are having on overall business. You then can refine strategies and develop repeatable processes for success.

MODERN MARKETING ESSENTIALS

Only 21% of marketers say their current tools are even capable of measuring the right things. Furthermore, only 26% believe the data they collect is even accurate.

BtoB Research: Defining the Modern Marketer: From Real to Ideal

4 Analysis

Tracking marketing ROI via technology is the most transformative factor marketers face today.

An analysis-driven Modern Marketer understands the value in transforming a company website into a powerful tool for systematically driving lead generation and cultivating, engaging, and capturing sales opportunities. Marketing automation helps manage your workflow so you can glean key data that will maximize your customer relationship management (CRM), social monitoring, and business intelligence (BI) investments. Core analysis metrics include:

- Digital behavioral history
- Inquiry to customer conversion rates
- Most popular website pages and time spent on page
- Leading referrers, search engines, and keywords

How Reporting Helps Establish Conversion Strategy

Integrated web analysis lets marketers track social media sites and relevant blogs that drive significant traffic to their website. Marketers can align their content sharing efforts with the social channels most likely to drive higher traffic and engagement, maximizing the impact of each campaign and boosting marketing ROI. The core data that once took hours to fuse together from various systems and spreadsheets is streamlined via marketing automation dashboards to provide visibility into campaign ROI relevant to your specific business needs. Key reporting capabilities include the ability to:

- Measure performance of all assets within a campaign for a holistic view of program effectiveness
- Focus on campaigns generating the most pipeline, revenue and return
- Summarize performance by geography, sales team or product line
- Fully manage campaigns while synchronizing data with CRM
